Turning Negativity into Engagement

OUR COMMENT SEEDING IMPACT

Negative Audience Sentiment

Negative audience sentiment indicates the presence of unfavourable opinions, criticisms, or concerns expressed by users. If left unaddressed, such negative comments can significantly impact overall product perception and brand image, as highly visible critical feedback often shapes audience opinion and decision-making. This can lead to hesitation, reduced trust, and a skewed perception of the product, even when the majority sentiment is positive. Over time, unchecked negativity can dominate the narrative, affecting engagement quality, weakening brand credibility, and reducing the effectiveness of current and future campaigns.

Overpriced in my opinion. I dunno, these days Samsung's prices are going up like crazy, it's nuts. Midrange phone priced like a flagship 🤔

This all is the reason why I haven't yet upgraded from my Samsung A73.

At that price, but getting an Exynos? Feels like a rip-off, honestly.

Comment Seeding

Comment seeding is a strategic approach used to guide and influence conversations by placing relevant, positive, and informative responses within existing comment threads. It helps address concerns, highlight product strengths, and create a more balanced narrative around the brand.

By actively engaging within conversations, comment seeding helps shift audience perception, dilute negative sentiment, and encourage more favorable discussions ultimately turning passive or critical interactions into informed and positive engagement.

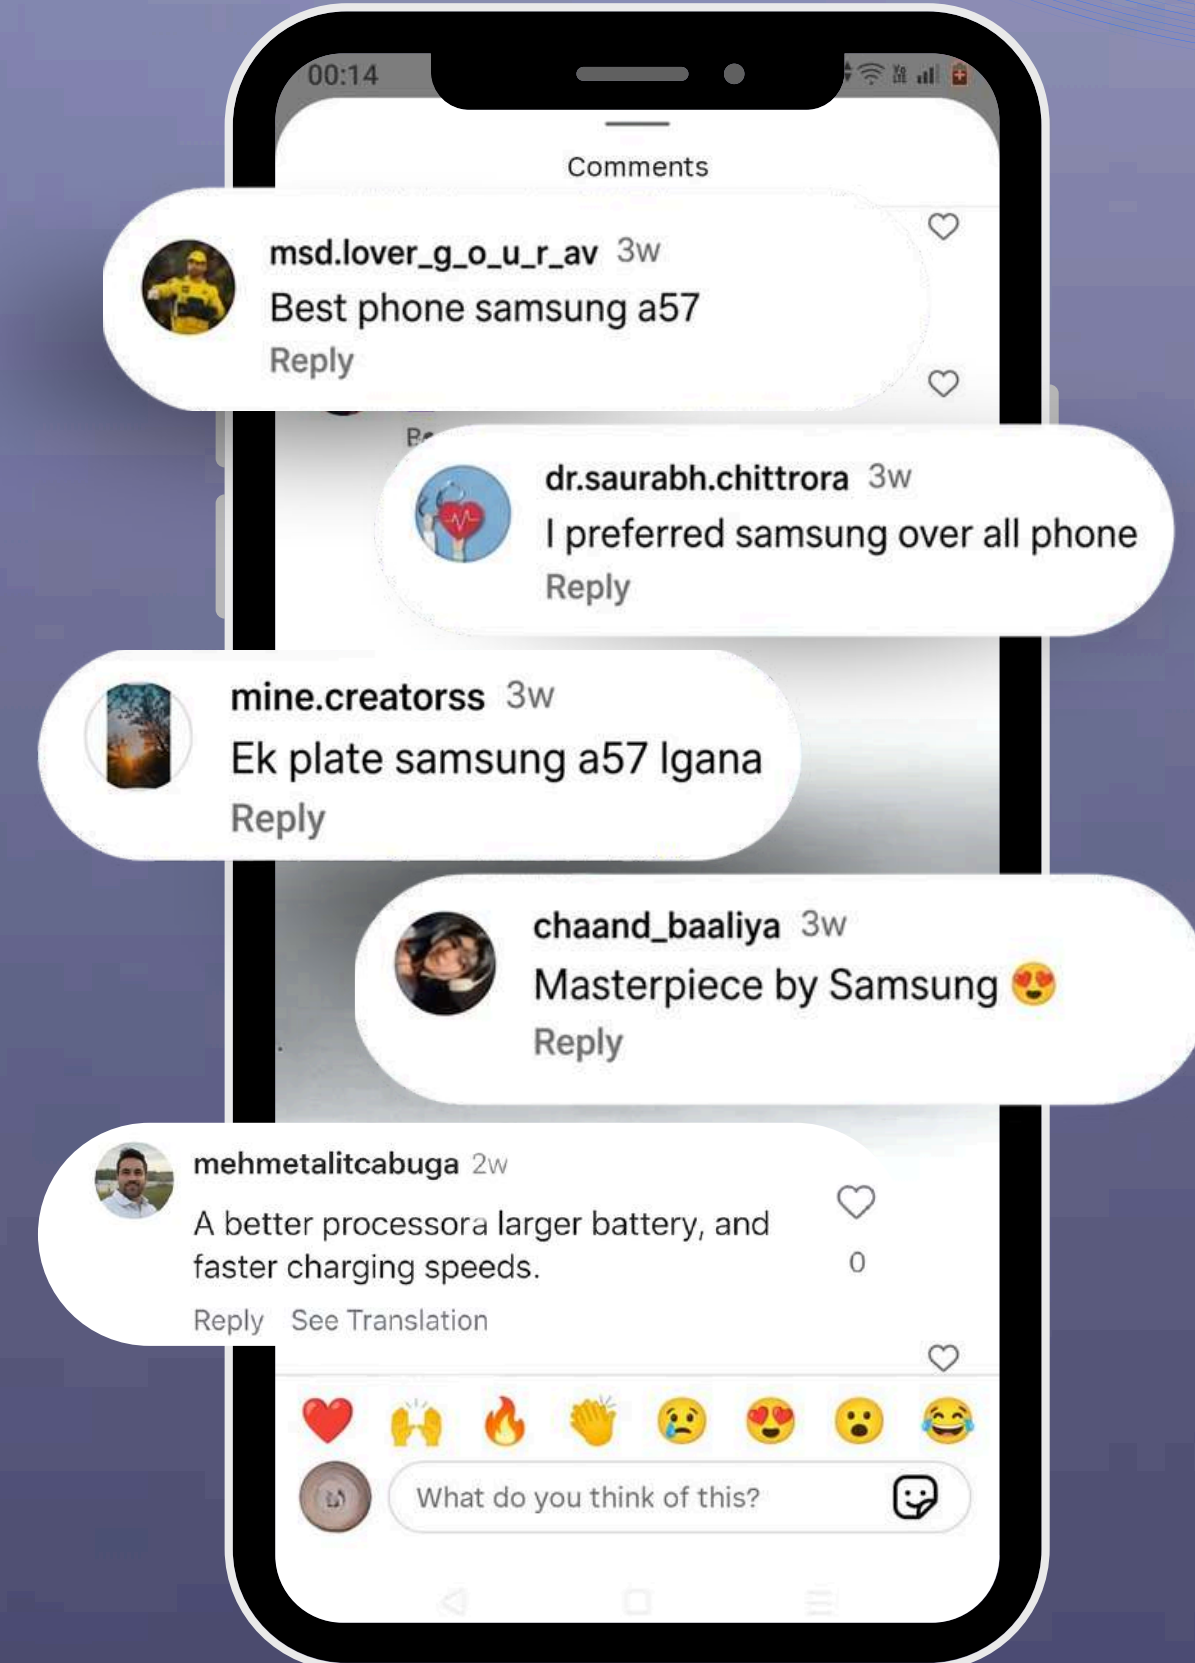

KEY LEARNINGS:

- Timely intervention through strategic responses and narrative building is crucial to steer audience sentiment effectively.
- Negative feedback, if not addressed, can influence overall perception despite strong positive volume.
- High engagement-driven content naturally attracts a mix of positive and negative sentiment, making active conversation management essential.

Managing Audience Sentiment

To balance overall sentiment and reduce the impact of negative feedback, focused efforts will be taken to actively strengthen positive conversations and guide audience perception.

- Deploy comment seeding to consistently highlight product strengths and positive experiences.
- Actively build conversations around key features within existing comment threads.
- Use contextual replies to shift narrative and reinforce positive sentiment.
- Amplify and pin positive comments to boost visibility and sentiment.
